TRADING DIPLOMA 2012

DIPLOMA IN TRADING AND TECHNICAL ANALYSIS

An Intensive Evening Programme With Amplify Trading : 3 Weeks

Our Diploma programme incorporates many of the key aspects covered in our longer programmes to give an interested trader a key insight into how we trade as professionals here at Amplify Trading.

The first week of theory is lead by our head of trading Piers Curran to cover some of the key basics before you join the traders trading US equities and EURUSD currency pair between 6pm and 9pm each evening for weeks two and three.

Some of our Diploma students have used this introduction to gauge fully how trading at this level is suited to them before making a more full time commitment, joining the career programme from the start of month two.

The structure of each evening session is designed to make sure you are fully briefed on the trading activity seen throughout the European session that day so you can trade using the same cutting edge professional trading systems as our experienced traders on our trading floor.

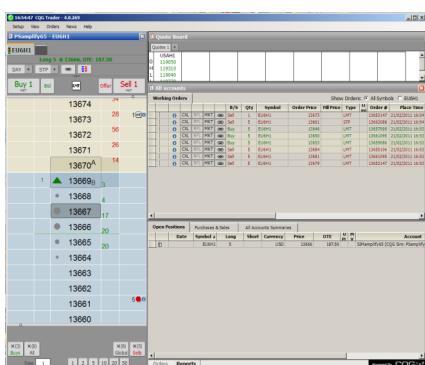

Key Principles of the Diploma in Trading and Technical analysis

- A unique experience to trade with experienced traders at the front of historic financial market activity.
- Applying macroeconomic understanding to trade financial markets in response to real-time financial news from your direct news feed provided by Amplify Trading.
- Experience hands on training and support with access to the key lectures on trading in current market volatility.
- Train and trade with experienced traders for each US session developing your own trading style as you go through our intensive evening programme.
- The option to convert part time diploma into the full time programme from month two onwards
- Receive certified qualification in the form of a Diploma in Trading and Technical Analysis to further your career within the financial industry.

STRUCTURE AND PROGRESSION

Our Intensive part time training programme is structured to give you a key insight into trading at a professional level with Amplify Trading.

- Classes in key theory Right from the start our head of trading Piers Curran will take you through key aspects of macroeconomic theory, technical analysis and behavioural finance. You will be introduced to the importance of trading psychology, taking part in an individual psychometric test to find out what kind of trader you will be.
- Progressive simulator trading Equipped with the basic tools and understanding of intra-day trading strategies you will join our US traders each evening to develop your own trading style according to your analysis preferences and personality traits. This development phase is supported by continued daily feedback from the Amplify Team. Your completed daily trading reports will enable us to give the right technical, fundamental and psychological support to best improve your performance.
